Dr. G. L. Morris and Mr. Rolph Wood, of Buckingham, were in town yesterday. Dr. Morris is an applicant for appointment to the treasurership of Buckingham County: That several other applicants presented their claims for the appointment to Judge Hutcheson in Farmville Tuesday Among the applicants for appointment are Mrs. Richard Ellis, who has been serving as deputy treasurer, Monroe Johns, Col. Albert Terrell and Dr. G. L. Morris. Sheriff Griffin, who it is said will be a candidate at the election next year is not a candidate for appointment for the short term.

Buckingham is a big county and the canvass next year is already being spoken of as presenting for the candidates a great local fight.

John L. Lee

This distinguished Virginia lawyer passed away at his home in Amherst county Sunday in the 65th year of his age. He had been sick for several months. Jack was recognized as one of the giant criminal lawyers of Virginia and his reputation and skill often called him to distant states to defend those charged with crime. He was frank and honest, fearless and a powerful advocate before a jury.

The writer knew him for many years in his young days and Jack was a loyal and faithful friend and we mourn his death with his host of friends. He is survived by his wife and three children.

Rockbridge Letter

Dear TIMES:—The good old summertime is a thing of the past and tho loathe to part with the old friends, yet we welcome this grand autumn, which is now upon us, in full sway. It has been the good fortune of your quondam correspondent to make a prolonged visit to this part of our dear 'Old Virginia' during this season.

The mountains around here are one gorgeous mass of beauty. The bright red of sourwood and dogwood, intermingled with the yellow of hickory and maples, together with the varied shades of other foliage, make a picture too grand and too varied to be copied by human hand. On the lowlands, some trees are still green and here and there a tree stands out in flaming colors without a single green leaf; but the mountain sides look as if they had been brushed over with burnished gold. One cannot look at the mountains and not appreciate nature's wonderful scenery and also be impressed by the number of tourists in cars with licenses from distant cities, enjoying the exquisite landscape. Now we can exclaim with the poet, "Who can paint like nature? Can imagination boast among its varied scenes of hues like these?"

This is a beautiful and fertile farm, situated on on Buffalo Creek and North River. A large crop of wheat, rye, oats, and barley has been sowed, all of which are growing rapidly. Farmers say they reap a better crop of grain from early sowing and so by middle of October most of them have finished. It would be wise if our Appomattox farmers would adopt the same plan, but alas, no, they are slow. Some farmers sold tobacco in Lynchburg on the opening day, and were far from being pleased. It does seem that the buyers would have shown more policy and fellow-feeling than to get tobacco below the cost of production. We unionists warned those outside, but they simply smiled, and all we could say was, "Ephraim is joined to idols, let him alone." To say the least, they have lost a golden opportunity to make a living from their farms.

It will soon be in order to turn my steps homeward. Some sad changes have taken place. 'Friends have been scattered like roses in June, some to the bridal, some to the tomb."

With best wishes,

BARTON TO HEAD BAPTIST PROGRAM

Missourian Will Lead Effort to Increase Mission and Benevolent Budget

CHURCHES GIVE TOO LITTLE

Survey Reveals Low Standards Maintained by Many—Plans Are Laid For Improvement in 1927

To lead Southern Baptists in greatly increasing their budget for the support of missions, Christian education and benevolences, Dr. A. J. Barton of Kansas City, superintendent of Baptist work in Missouri for the past three years, and one of the most prominent men in the denomination, has accepted the position of general director of the Baptist Co-operative Program, and will move to Nashville, Tenn., to assume his new duties at once.

Southern Baptists are seeking to raise $9,000,000 for the Co-operative Program during this convention year and Dr. Barton will seek to enlist the aid of every agency and church of the Southern Baptist Convention in the accomplishment of this task.

Has Served Denomination

In his new position Dr. Barton brings a wide denominational and public experience. He has held prominent pastorates in the South and has served as associate secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, field secretary of the Home Mission Board, general secretary of the Arkansas State Mission Board, and secretary of the Texas Baptist Education Commission prior to taking up his work in Missouri. He has also long been prominent in the cause of temperance. For sixteen years he has been a member of the executive and legislative committees of the Anti-saloon League of America, and during his incumbency as superintendent of the Anti-saloon League of Texas he saw prohibition written into the constitution of that state.

Bringing the Baptist churches of the South to a higher standard in giving to the missionary, educational and benevolent program of the denomination, known as the Co-operative Program, will be the first and chief task to which the new general director will address himself.

According to a recent survey of the record of the Baptist churches of the South, compiled from the letters of the individual churches to their district associations for 1926, made by Dr. E. P. Aldredge, statistical secretary of Southern Baptists, 5,827 churches listed as co-operating with the Southern Baptist Convention, gave nothing to missions and benevolences last year. Other interesting information gleaned from this survey reveals that 12,319 other churches, or slightly more than one-half of the total number of churches, retained from 76 to 99 cents out of every dollar coming into their treasuries for purely local work; 1,685 churches applied from 67 to 75 cents, and 1,506 churches from 51 to 66 cents out of every dollar contributed to their own local work; whereas, only 501 churches in all the South gave 50 cents or more out of every dollar coming into their treasuries to missions and benevolences beyond the borders of their own communities.

The Southern Baptist Convention has established an ideal of a fifty-fifty distribution in that it is recommending to the churches that they endeavor to give half of all the money raised by them to the general work of the denomination, retaining the other half for their own local expenses.

Included in the plans of the Co-operative Program is an every-member canvass this fall in every Baptist church with a view to enlisting every member in making a subscription to missions and benevolences.

Another effort is that of enlisting at least 500,000 Southern Baptists as tithers, or giving one-tenth of their incomes to religious work through their churches. In this connection the number of tithers which each state in the Southern Baptist Convention will undertake to enlist is given as follows: Alabama, 27,850; Arkansas, 21,250; District of Columbia, 2,000; Florida, 13,450; Georgia, 35,500; Illinois, 4,700; Kentucky, 42,950; Louisiana, 15,800; Maryland, 2,450; Mississippi, 20,000; Missouri, 21,400; New Mexico, 1,500; North Carolina, 50,000; Oklahoma, 17,000; South Carolina, 29,500; Tennessee, 37,500; Texas, 71,500, and Virginia, 30,000.

Let us do your next printing.

Mary Succeeds on Main Street

By LAURA MILLER

© 1925, by Laura Miller

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE YARDS

"Main Street can't train girls to earn a living," is a plaint that runs through thousands of letters, in sorrowing or another, from girls who seek careers. True, it is that courses in biology, in art, in medicine, are not to be found at any crossroads. But suppose a fury of desire to paint people—or to cut them up and remold them nearer to good health's desire—doesn't drive Mary off Main Street! Shall she forsake family and friends and all the comfortable, homely things one grows up with, for a casual career? If one's just the average girl, may not the little home town job, where a conscientious worker learns something of everything, help out it the great test comes?

Let me tell you the story of Mary Marshall of Marshalltown, Ind. It was early in 1919. War brides were hurrying to meet transports from France. Fathers in khaki were losing their look born of horrors as they gazed upon miraculous little sons that dazzled their own before-the-war selves.

Mary Marshall, nee Hopkins, had just come to Washington for a job that would support herself and John, Jr. She and John, Sr., had run the railroad and village telegraph office until 1918. Then she had abruptly become Mrs. Marshall and sole operator. She was a competent worker, evidently. And she knew she was releasing not merely a man, but her man for his service. When John, Jr., arrived she gave up work and lived with Father and Mother Marshall.

The day Mary came to me—I was running Uncle Sam's employment office in Washington just then—I tried to send her back to Marshalltown. She had a home. She had a baby to take care of. And she was—so I told her—practically untrained. Hadn't she come straight from the corner of Main Street and Railroad Avenue?

Mary Marshall wouldn't go back to Marshalltown. After a generous portion of stupidity on my part and of shyness on hers, the story came out. John, Sr., was in a Washington hospital, shell-shocked. His chances for sanity lay in seeing Mary and John, Jr., every day. A job was found for Mary as correspondence clerk in the telegraph division of the United States Railroad administration. It was no dazzling job, either. "There isn't anything she didn't learn something about in that little dump of an office in the railroad yards," her chief said later. "She's all to the good."

For obvious reasons, Mary Marshall and Marshalltown aren't her real home and address. But the story is real to the core.

(Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundations)

Wheat and flour are synonymous in the minds of many. As a matter of fact, however, forty per cent of our mammoth wheat crop never leaves the farm at all, but is used for seed purposes and feeding farm animals, states the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundations in a survey recently completed on wheat consumption. It is used most abundantly for feeding in those sections of the country having a west surplus and a shortage of the usual feed crops such as corn, oats and barley. The poorer qualities of wheat, not suited for making flour, are kept behind for this purpose.

Chickens are the heaviest consumers of wheat fed on the farm using 30.1% of all wheat so distributed. Swine are next, with 29.1%. In wheat-growing sections horses are fed wheat and consume on an average 8.4% of all wheat fed on the farm, while the remaining 8.4% goes to cattle.

Miss Fannie Dial, daughter of the former senator from South Carolina and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Dial, will make her debut to society in Washington this winter.

Huge Still

Archie Ford, Truman Woody, W. J. Deacon, and Floyd Wright, were brought here yesterday from Lynchburg, charged with manufacturing ardent spirits. These arrests were made by prohibition officers in connection with the large still captured in this county last Saturday.

Revenue Officers V. O. Smith, W. Gregory, Allen Farmer, assisted by Sheriff McKinney, Deputy Duvall Conner, and Justice W. L. Brown, Saturday. Outfits for making moonshine liquor ever witnessed in this county and poured out on the streets of Appomattox 200 gallons of pure corn liquor before a crowd of citizens as witnesses, who watched the liquor run down the gutter like water after a rain.

The officers visited the place late Friday night and after making all necessary observations, raided the outfit about 2 o'clock. There was found at the still a comprehensive outfit arranged in every detail for a large output of liquor. There was captured one 500-gallon copper still, one 150-gallon condenser, one 500-gallon cooling tub, one 600-gallon flake stand, 16 600-gallon ferments, 6,600 gallons of mash, 600 pounds of meal, 200 pounds of red dog, 60 cases of half gallon glass jars, 200 gallons of liquor, one horse and wagon, two new army tents, 3 army cots, 3 mattresses, and various other details for camping and manufacturing liquor. The still was found on the old Riley Bagby farm adjoining Arthur W. Slider, who is offanged in the warrant as operating same. He was brought before Justice Steele here and waived examination and was sent on Dec. grand jury. The outfit and camp was found situated on a branch joining the two counties. According to the officers, it appeared that whoever were making the liquor were camping at the still and were not residents of the immediate vicinity. According to the officers, the plant, as it stood, represented a value of $5000, and the 200 gallons of liquor poured out this morning would easily have been sold for $1,500.00 had it been bootlegged before it was captured.
